15 Plan A is a show of force to encourage Congress to do the just thing and appoint Trump electors or have contingent election.

Plan B: We'll see what happens...

permalink parent save report block reply

▲ Sting 4 months ago +12 / -6

6 A is not possible and B isn't even written out on a napkin somewhere.

This is depressing.

1 Trump, unfortunately, doesn't have experience ordering people to their death. This could actually be a great excuse to smuggle armed men in and stage a coup. But I don't think he'll do it, and without violence, no one is going to care. The crazies are unfortunately on the Left, but it may be that some anarchist will fire a shot, a panic will ensue, and people will turn aggressive. Unfortunately, without that, I have never known a right-wing rally to be anything other than peaceful and law-abiding. Many Trump supporters would be willing to take action if someone "official" would lead them, though.

What if Pence just counts all of the electoral votes, including the alternative ones from the GOP, putting Trump at 311 electoral votes and Biden at 306.

You doomers didn't hold the line but that never mattered anyway.

The truth is, if our side isn't willing to fight with actual, you know, fighting, we already lost. As the date gets closer, all I hear is more walking back. I've determined this movement isn't really serious. It's a shame. There isn't going to be another chance.

What if Pence pulls out a napkin with "We certify 538 electors for Jeb Bush" written on it and says it's the legitimate vote?

3 I love how we have this big planned date that we have to organize and buy hotels and kind of improve the economy organically of a local area while the other side just counts on the hostility of children to do their dirty work spontaneously with assumed violence.

Our January 6th date and it's THREAT of violence is simply based on legal decisions based on complex constitutional minutiae that have been researched but never enacted by legal scholars. To get this far a group has to be both well informed and organized.

To win folks all we need is anger. To get angrier. Spit a little when speaking.

MSM is still bickering about Georgia. We have bigger things to worry about than proving fraud in elections. At this point I don't care if it was a legal election, Trump cannot leave.

I have something in my head like this....thousands in the streets, hopefully a million. The national guard approaches us in DC and leads a march right into the mother fucking senate and house chambers so they have no choice but to hear our case.

Your thoughts are quite demented. You can't even accept the FACT that women are weaker than men. We are incapable of producing anywhere near the testosterone that a man does. This means that our muscle mass and strength are far less than that of a man. This is well known science. Doesn't your kind scream "TRUST THE SCIENCE"? Perhaps you should take your own advice here. Feminism is cancer.
